East Norwalk Beautification Committee

It is with deep regret that the East Norwalk Beautification Committee says farewell to Michelle Beyman. Michelle acted as chairperson of the Beautification Committee since its inception. Michelle has accomplished a tremendous amount for East Norwalk. The Beautification Committee started under the sponsorship of the East Norwalk Improvement Association. With a budget of only 500 dollars, the committee under Michelle's leadership has taken on a life of its own. The committee began as the driving force behind the removal of the former Howard Johnson's. Under Michelle's guidance, the committee encouraged the Gardella family to landscape the entrance to Cove Marina beautifying our beach. The committee has cleaned up traffic islands and sidewalks. A quick drive around town will immediately show the difference the committee has made in a short time.

Michelle was presented with a plaque from the Commissioners of the Third Taxing District on June 20, 2002. The commission is thankful to Michelle for spearheading a movement that improved life for all residents of East Norwalk.

We wish Michelle and her family, Richard, Silas, and Ruby the best of luck for the future.

To keep the Improvement Association's efforts going forward, Karen McDonald and Patsy Rupp of Saint John Street have been asked by the Improvement Association to serve as the new co-chairs of the beautification sub-committee. The Commission welcomes their participation and leadership and is grateful for their time and continued efforts. For those that wish to get involved, please contact Karen at 866-6091 or at karen11@snet.net.

CONSERVE FOR THE FUTURE

Global Warming Is Happening, Says Bush Administration Report

The Earth is getting warmer because of the accumulation of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, the Bush administration says in a lengthy report. The United States and the rest of the world will have to adapt to the climate changes that will result from this phenomenon, the administration says in U.S. Climate Action Report 2002.

Changes in the environment "will surely occur," and challenges associated with climate change "will most likely increase" during the 21st century, the report says. Human activities are largely to blame for global warming, says the study, the third report prepared by the United States under the requirements of a 1992 climate treaty.

In recognizing that humans are responsible for the warming trend, the report provides "a sharp contrast" to the Bush administration's previous statements on climate change, The New York Times said yesterday. But the report recommends adapting to inevitable changes in climate, rather than trying to make rapid reductions in greenhouse gas emissions, the newspaper said. The document "strongly concludes that no matter what is done to cut emissions in the future, nothing can be done about the environmental consequences of several decades' worth of carbon dioxide and other heat-trapping gases already in the atmosphere," the Times said.

The U.S. Climate Action Report is posted on the Environmental Protection Agency's Web site.
